

Zacharias Palexas

He was born in Cyprus in 1967. He holds a BSBA (honors, ranked first) from Georgetown University and an MBA (honors) from Harvard Business School. He is also a Certified Public Accountant and studied international finance at Oxford University.

He is a partner of Parthenon Trust, a strategy consulting and principal investing firm co-founded with The Parthenon Group. He also worked with Monitor Company and Arthur Andersen. He started his career in Washington, DC and Boston.

He has twenty years of international experience in strategy consulting and principal investing in North America, Europe and the Middle East. He has extensive experience in financial services having consulted banks, insurance and asset management companies on issues related to corporate strategy development, operational excellence and restructuring.

He is member of the Board of SYKALA – Laiki Bank Depositors Association (www.sykala.org).